

CONTENTS

VOLUME ONE

List of figures.....	vii
Preface	ix
Introductory essay.....	1
1. Chinese medical manuscripts.....	1
1.1. Handwriting in the age of printing	1
1.2. Manuscript copies of printed books.....	3
1.3. Original manuscripts.....	5
1.4. Chinese preferences	6
1.5. Unorthodox knowledge and practices	9
2. General characteristics of the Chinese medical manuscripts in the Berlin collections	13
2.1. Paper and binding	13
2.2. Classification of contents.....	16
3. Recipe collections	18
3.1. Various rationales of recipes	18
3.2. Simple and complex recipes in comparison	21
3.3. The modular construction, zhi 制, and patterns, fa 法, of complex recipes	26
3.4. Preconditions of trust in folk remedies.....	32
3.5. Spreading private knowledge	40
3.6. The circumstances of folk healing reflected in the medical recipe manuscripts	48
4. Major groups of authors.....	57
4.1. Medical recipe manuscripts of physicians.....	57
4.2. Pharmacists and their medication lists.....	67
4.3. Itinerant physicians and their manuscripts	73
5. Further groups of authors and their manuscripts	106
5.1. General remarks.....	106
5.2. Clinical subspecialties of regular Chinese traditional medicine.....	107
5.3. The popular writing of drugs names and numbers in recipe manuscripts	144
5.4. Demonology, magic, and religion in folk manuscripts.....	154

5.5.	Folk entertainment to popularize medical-pharmaceutical knowledge.....	175
6.	Non-medical contents in the manuscripts	187
6.1.	On sacrifices	187
6.2.	On interdictions/taboo.....	189
6.3.	Correspondence, petitions, contracts	191
6.4.	Poems, antithetical couplets, aphorisms, riddles	192
6.5.	Accounting.....	194
6.6.	Miscellaneous	195
7.	Finding the sources and dates of Chinese medical manuscripts ...	196
7.1.	Determination of sources	196
7.2.	Determination of dates.....	197
7.3.	The significance of the contents	201
8.	Conclusion	202
	Sample pages of manuscripts.....	204
	English index	233
	Chinese pinyin index	243
1.	Titles of books, chapters, sections, and poems	243
2.	Names of persons, firms and organizations	296
3.	Names of recipes/prescriptions/formulas/spells	311
4.	Names of pharmaceutical substances.....	328
5.	Technical terminology	339
6.	Place names.....	347
7.	Designations of health problems.....	350
8.	Acupuncture/moxibustion terminology	360
9.	Phrases/quotes/varia.....	362
	Index of Chinese recipe names	374

VOLUME TWO

Survey of mss. 8001–8449	717
--------------------------------	-----

VOLUME THREE

Survey of mss. 8450–48963	1805
---------------------------------	------